Domain Name in Dispute :: Mainstream Media :: Internet; Possibly TV & Print; Unreleased Since 2012

Domain Name in Dispute ("DNID") is a brand built on a mainstream digital publication with an emphasis on, but not limited to technology, arts, entertainment and lifestyle. Planned for years, with a fully functional prototype developed in 2012, launch is delayed due to more than a criminal/civil domain name dispute. DNID is powered by a new at the time custom developed Content Management System ("CMS"). The CMS and DNID were integrated with innovative new media publishing technology such as 360/VR video well before anyone else adapted this or similar technology.
